HANDSOME NECKLACE MADE OF SEASHELLS

Mrs. A. J. Ingersoll Recipient of Beautiful Gift From Brother Dutton on Island of Molokai, Hawaii.

Mrs. A. J. Ingersoll of this city has received from brother Joseph Dutton, a former Janesville boy, now engaged in missionary work among the hepers in the colony on the island of Molokai, Hawaii, a beautiful necklace made of shells. Tiny shells, shaped like small shells, of varying tints of light pink and light yellow, are strung together to make up the necklace. The necklaces are made by the women of the poorer classes in Honolulu. The necklace is highly prized by Mrs. Ingersoll for its associations.

"BROTHER" JOSEPH DUTTON IN 1893.

Many of the older residents remembered "Brother" Dutton when he worked in Sutherland's book store before the civil war. He served through that struggle with a Wisconsin regiment and later went to the League colony at Hawaii where he took up his work as a self exile among these unfortunate people. His old Janesville friends, of whom Mrs. Ingersoll is one, have kept in touch with him and he has written them most interesting letters at various intervals of his work.

SEEKS DAMAGES FOR INJURIES TO HAND

Dr. E. N. Sartell Suing Janesville Traction Company to Compensate for Smashed Fingers.

Dr. E. N. Sartell of this city has filed suit against the Janesville Traction company for $10,000 damages. In the complaint which was filed in the circuit court this morning, he alleges that in boarding one of the cars, February 12 of this year, he received injuries that rendered him incapable of attending to his duties as a surgeon for a period ending March 27th.

The complaint states that on the day in question, Dr. Sartell got on one of the cars of the local company at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. While in the act of taking his seat, the car started forward and then backward in such a way as to throw him violently to the rear of the car. To prevent his falling, he grabbed the edge of the door, and that the conductor slammed the other door on his fingers, in such a way as to injure them painfully.

The fingers were badly mashed and perforated and cellulitis set in, rendering the hand useless. He demands $10,000 as a recompense for his suffering and loss of practice. A Milwaukee firm of lawyers is handling his case.

CLAIM CANCER IS CAUSED BY GERMS

Government Pathologist States That Plant Cancers are Due to Germs And Germs Cause Human Cancer.

Washington, July 11.—That cancer is a germ disease and not due to other causes is the claim of Dr. Frank P. Smith, chief pathologist of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

For seven years Dr. Smith has held to his theory and now he says he has proved that plant cancers—or tumors—are due to germs, and he claims that there is not the slightest doubt but that human cancers are due to the same cause.

"Physicians," said Dr. Smith today, "claim that cancer is not a germ disease simply because they have never been able to find the germ, but I have proved conclusively that plant tumors—which are nothing more than cancers in the vegetable world—are due to a parasite, despite the fact that I have never seen or found the organism. But by thousands of experiments and years of patient work I have found that it is so, and everyone who has studied the vegetable and animal world knows what a similarity there is between the plant tumor and the human cancer."

"Therefore, having proven the one to be due to a germ I cannot see that there is the shadow of a doubt but that the other is also."

GOVERNMENT REPORT SHOWS POORER CROPS THAN FORMER YEARS

THE JULY GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT SHOWS THAT THE CROPS IN THE UNITED STATES WILL BE SMALLER.

DECREASED ACREAGE

Corn Crop Shows an Increase in Acreage While Most of Other Products Show Smaller Areas Than in Previous Years.

Washington, July 11.—The July crop of the United States Department of Agriculture Crop Reporting Board, issued at 2:15 P. M. today, shows the condition on July 1, and the yield per acre, as indicated by the condition on that date, of the principal farm crops and the acreage of those not already announced, as follows:—

Corn.—Condition 80.1 per cent of a normal, compared with 85.4 per cent in 1910 and 84.7 per cent, the average for the past ten years, on that date; indicated yield per acre, 25.5 bushels, compared with 27.4 bushels, the 1910 final yield, and 27.1 bushels, the average for the last five years and the area planted to corn this year 115,329,000 acres, compared with 114,000,000 acres in 1910.

Winter Wheat.—Condition, 76.8 per cent of a normal compared with 80.4 per cent on June 1, 1911, 81.5 per cent in 1910, and 81.4 per cent, the ten year average; indicated yield per acre, 14.6 bushels compared with 15.8 bushels in 1910, and 15.5 bushels the five year average.

Spring Wheat.—Condition, 73.8 per cent of a normal, compared with 94.6 per cent, on June 1, 1911, 61.6 per cent in 1910 and 87.8 per cent, the ten year average; indicated yield per acre, 11.8 bushels compared with 11.7 bushels in 1910, and 13.5 bushels the five year average.

All Wheat.—Condition, 75.6 per cent of a normal, compared with 86.1 per cent, on June 1, 1911, 73.5 per cent in 1910 and 84.4 per cent the ten year average; indicated yield per acre 13.5 bushels, compared with 14.1 bushels in 1910 and 14.7 bushels, the five year average.

The amount of wheat remaining on farms July 1, is estimated at about 35,288,000 bushels, compared with 25,729,000 bushels on July 1, 1910, and 27,591,000 bushels, the average amount on farms July 1, for the past five years.

Oats.—Condition, 68.8 per cent, of a normal, compared with 85.7 per cent on June 1, 1911, 82.2 per cent in 1910 and 80.3 per cent the ten year average; indicated yield per acre 23.2 bushels, compared with 31.8 bushels in 1910 and 28.4 bushels, the five year average.

Barley.—Condition 72.1 per cent, of a normal, compared with 90.2 per cent on June 1, 1911, 73.7 per cent in 1910 and 87.9 per cent, the ten year average; indicated yield per acre 20.9 bushels, compared with 22.4 bushels in 1910 and 24.8 bushels the five year average.

Rye.—Condition, 85.0 per cent, of a normal compared with 88.6 per cent on June 1, 1911, 87.0 per cent in 1910 and 90.8 per cent, the ten year average; indicated yield per acre 15.5 bushels, compared with 16.3 bushels in 1910 and 16.4 bushels, the five year average.

White Potatoes.—Condition 75.0 per cent, of a normal, compared with 80.3 per cent in 1910 and 90.4 per cent, the ten year average; indicated yield per acre 81.7 bushels, compared with 94.4 bushels in 1910 and 80.9 bushels, the five year average; area planted 3,455,000 acres compared with 3,581,000 acres in 1910.

PLAN TO PAY FIFTY PER CENT DIVIDEND

BONDS OF THE FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION WILL SOON BE REDEEMED.

CELEBRATION SUCCESS

Bills Are Not All in as Yet, But Treasurer Got in a Certain That Fifty Per Cent, If Not Better Will Be Paid.

July third, fourth and fifth Janesville held a military celebration. As far as can be learned it proved to be a financial success for all those who were in business handling articles that the crowd bought. Roughly estimated, thirty thousand persons were in the city July fourth and a good sized crowd on both Monday and Wednesday.

John Golmer, secretary and treasurer.

Chas. R. Bently left this morning.

LAST YEAR MARKED HIGHEST RANGE OF PRICES IN DECADE

High Cost of Living Was Actual Fact According to Investigation of the Bureau of Labor.

Janesville citizens who found reason to complain about the high prices last year, were justified in so doing according to the report of the investigation of the bureau of labor.

The investigation of the prices of 257 commodities during 1910 shows that wholesale prices in that year were 4 per cent above the average of 1907, which was the lowest of the decade.

In view of the Canadian reciprocity discussion, an interesting item in the bureau report shows that the wholesale prices of farm products were 7.5 per cent higher in 1910 than in 1909, and 1.5 per cent above the average of 1907, which was the lowest of the decade.

Wholesale prices in 1910 were 11.1 per cent higher than in 1909; 46.7 per cent higher than 1897 (which was the year of lowest prices between 1890 and 1910); 15.6 per cent higher than 1899, and 31.4 per cent higher than the average prices between 1890 and 1899.

High Notch in 1907.

The highest prices in 1910, when were reached in October, 1910, during a general decline began, which continued until August, 1908. A rise then set in, and there were monthly increases without a break up to March, 1910, when wholesale prices reached the highest point in twenty years. They were then 21.1 per cent higher than the average of 1909; 40.2 per cent higher than the yearly average of 1897, and 33.8 per cent higher than the average price of ten years between 1890 and 1899.

Then follows a slight decline and from June to December 1910, prices remained nearly level. At the close of the calendar year 1910 they were still 30 per cent higher than the ten year average between 1890 and 1900 and 45.5 per cent higher than the record set by the high price year, 1897. Of the 257 commodities considered in the investigation 148 showed an average increase, 25 showed no change and 83 showed decreases.

Some Things That Jumped.

Prices of lumber and building materials increased 10.87 per cent; farm products, 7.5; drugs, 4.1 per cent; foodstuffs, 3.2 per cent; clothing, 2.7 per cent; and the miscellaneous group of commodities, 5.7 per cent; home furnishings decreased 0.1 per cent and fuel and light 3 per cent.

Some extraordinary variations were recorded during 1910. Potatoes increased 300 per cent; eggs, 90 per cent; coffee, 50 per cent; meat beef, 35 per cent.

LINK AND PIN.

Chicago and Northwestern.

Janesville men came in for their share of assignments on the new bulletin just posted in the shops. The number of those who figured in the allotments at this time is unusually large. Some of those are: Freeman Townsend to passenger 534 and 541; Freeman P. J. Davey gets the assignment to freight 582 and 589; J. W. Lewis gets the Janesville shop run, and E. Walters goes on freight 582 and 584 between 40th avenue and Janesville.

Engineer Spohn reported for duty on the southbound way freight, No. 588, today. Engineer Coen, who was relieving him, is on the board.

Conductor Anns and Engineer Dille went north with an extra this morning.

Engine 1501 on the 502 Chicago passenger, broke down early this morning necessitating its being taken to the shops for repairs. It was replaced by engine 2013 and the latter's place was filled by 489.

Thomas Root, plumper, resigned yesterday.

Fireman Walters resumed his duties on the shop run today.

Conductor Perry and two of his brakemen are off duty because there are no cars available for the Burlington.

There seems to be a great rush of business in the northern section and just the opposite condition south of here as the movement of cars can be taken as an indication of the actual state of affairs. Everything seemed quiet southward, there were no cars sent in that direction today, while an want in the opposite direction.

Switch-tender McMullen, who is off duty for a few days, went to Baraboo today. He is relieved by Hestichman Smith.

Conductor Sage resumed work today.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Engineer Smith and Fireman Higgins went out on 91 at 9:20 this morning.

Way freight 194 on the C. & M. division went out in charge of Engineer Stephens and Fireman Pritchard this morning.

Engineer Schlicker and Fireman Martin had charge of 165 when it pulled out at 5:30 today.

Engineer Scully went in charge of 162 today.

THE BOY'S PUNISHMENTS.

The boy who slips through life without getting some sort of punishment—there is no such boy. Even if he should never do anything to require punishment—but why deal in pure hypothesis? If he should be able to escape all the vigilance committees that are after him, it would be solely because he is doing the punishing and administering the discipline himself, and in secret; but we need not tarry over that rare, if not impossible, specimen. Some divergence from the line of rectitude is inevitable, even when that line is clearly drawn by the teaching, and attractively illuminated, by the practice of those who have him in charge. He cannot escape all his monitors, including his conscience. So punishment must come, because, if there be no results of wrongdoing, there can be no wrong-doing, and we have a fool world to live in.

Those who have him in charge have been nominated and elected to administer it; but you must first catch the hare before cooking it, and you must actually find something to punish before the punishment is handed out to him. It takes some sense to know with certainty, in every case, whether there has been wrongdoing, what it deserves, how the punishment should be administered and what is the purpose of it. So it is an intricate and unusual problem presented when his daddy starts out to punish him.

Sometimes a boy looks innocent, has an irritating recent and seems to deserve attention on general principles. In that case, circumstantial evidence becomes conclusive. Sometimes it is his awkwardness and not his misdeeds that leads to a break. All of us are interested in what Tolstoi writes, and he says his ungainly, ugly, stupid-looking face and coarse, unshapely hands and feet distressed him, and made him more intractable than a boy. An irritated parent may like him to work off his own anger, and that is worse than hanging the wrong man from circumstantial evidence. To mistreat a boy is a crime and ought to be treated as such. It is not always possible to keep a boy from thinking he is unjustly treated and, in that case, all you can do is to do right and let him get over his mist whenever it suits his convenience.

Punishment can be reduced to a minimum by careful discipline in the directing of his life. Directing the boy's life is a god send like directing the course of a horse. There are two ways of driving a horse, a right and a wrong way. The right way is to hold the reins slightly taut, so that the horse can feel the faintest pressure on either line, and soon he will enter with you into the enjoyment of the drive. The wrong way is to let him have the reins and do as he will, until he does something you do not want, and then go at him and beat him till his skin and his heart are sore and he grows weary and, profane and, would like to do something desperate. The horse's mistakes are wholly due to the way his driver has treated him and the latter deserves the beating. Good discipline will save drubbing.

It is my most solemn conclusion that, in almost every case, the wrongdoing of a boy that requires punishment could have been prevented by the parents, and that they ought to take the punishment themselves. They ought to have honor enough to voluntarily take it and let him know it, so that he may have the moral effect of seeing such a rare instance of nobility. There is still an altruistic element in suffering.

But when punishment is truly deserved, it must be given and the occasion made an epoch in the life of the boy. It is not to be made an end in itself, nor a matter of retribution, nor anyone's vindication, but an education to the boy. It must, first of all, bring him back to the line of rectitude from which he departed. A sense of wrong in him, not a sense of the majesty of right and truth, but a new desire to conform his life to it.

Inseparable from the punishing must be the effort to remove the occasion, and even the cause, of the offense for which it was inflicted. If they trace it back to themselves, they must protect him from themselves, their modesty of speech, the atmosphere they create by their inner spirit and their failure to give him the wise discipline and life needs. If the cause of it is in him alone, as, in rare instances, it is, they can undertake no higher life-work than protecting him against his own faults.

He will respect authority, but not those who would let him tyrants or outlaws. He may be persuaded to enter into any right scheme of discipline, involving punishment and rewards, which means he will co-operate in his own development, a thing very necessary if there is to be a right development. The sentiment of fear, which one may appeal to, in a right way, may be harnessed up to active work and turned into love.

Punishment must be free from threats and harshness and anger, for they defeat its purpose. It must not be occasional and intermittent, but as such need arises. The quieter and freer from noise and talk such occasions can be made, the more surely will they serve their true purpose.

CROPS DAMAGED BY DROUGHT.

Corn and Oats Nearly Ruined, Spring Wheat Yield Badly Cut.

Chicago, July 11.—Enormous crop losses have occurred during the last thirty days as the result of drought and record-breaking temperatures all over the country. The crops cannot stand temperatures of 100 to 115 as prevailed for days in the southwest, and the corn and oats crops of Texas and Oklahoma are practically failures. South Dakota has also suffered by drought and heat, the small grain crop being cut down two-thirds. There have been losses in nearly every state and even the splendid promise for spring wheat in North Dakota has dropped 7,000,000 bushels in 30 days.

The wheat crop will be short for the month 62,000,000. Oats are short 158,000,000 bushels for the same period.

FINED $25,000 AND FAINTS.

Importer Pleads Guilty to Undervaluing Millinery Goods.

New York, July 11.—Julius Rosenberg, who with his brother Hugo has been a fugitive from justice for over a year, came from Montreal and unexpectedly appeared in the United States circuit court and pleaded guilty to undervaluing importations of millinery and dress goods.

Although District Attorney Wise made a plea for a prison sentence, Judge Archibald fined Rosenberg $25,000 and costs, amounting to $5,000. Rosenberg fainted, but paid the fine.

Paris, July 11.—Twenty-five thousand union building workers struck here to enforce a demand that the piece-work system be abolished and their daily wages increased.

Grand Circuit Opens at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 11.—Quartered at the State Fair Grounds just beyond the city limits are several hundred trotters and pacers who are to furnish the sport that marks the first day of the Grand Circuit, which opened today and will continue until Saturday. Though it is the first time Indianapolis has been honored with a Grand Circuit meeting the veteran race men and others who are here to take part say that the interest never was keener, even in the paucity days when the inauguration of the season with the blue-ribbon meeting at Detroit never failed to attract thousands to the City of the Strids.

The program here is a splendid one, made up of sixteen events, four for each day of the meeting. The feature event of the opening day is the 2:20 $2,500 stake trot which is expected to be one of the best races of the week. Among the entries are some of the most promising looking stake trotters that will go down the big line this season, and the majority of which will star in the M. and M. at Detroit, three weeks hence.

RULE OF REASON.

Whether or not the continued suits of the United States government against the big "interests" will be successful or not, the fact remains that the United States supreme court has declared that the rule of reason should be applied to the operation of the Sherman law, and it was confidently predicted in some quarters that the law department of the government would be thereby greatly hampered in all further proceedings against the great combinations. Some went so far as to say that the court's insistence upon reasonableness practically rendered the anti-trust statute inoperative. In other quarters it was regarded as a "blow" to the President and his attorney general. Generally speaking, however, the ruling was received with great favor, not only because it was in line with the educated and liberal thought of the nation, but also because, for the first time, it made really practical a statute which, if interpreted literally, and after the hard and fast fashion in vogue 300 years ago, would have made the transaction of business on a large scale impossible, thus defeating its primary purpose, which is to regulate, not to paralyze trade.

The President and Attorney General Wickersham made it plain very early that the opinion of the supreme court was wholly satisfactory to them. At Battle Creek, Mich., before the State Bar Association on Thursday, the attorney general, however, went into the matter more thoroughly than on any previous occasion. The weeks that have elapsed since the decision in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco cases were handed down have not in the least altered his view. At the very beginning of his address he said: "Those who have thoughtlessly yielded to the superficial conclusion resulting from the application by the chief justice of the rule of reason to the interpretation of the Sherman law can find but little to justify the idea that the Sherman law has been made ineffective by these two decisions, for precisely the contrary is established." It is gratifying to have this matured statement from the head of the government's legal department. Equally so is it to learn from him that his idea of trade regulation is that all unnecessary restrictions should be removed from it. He believes that it should move with absolute freedom. "All history demonstrates the fact," he said, "that the greatest prosperity of the state has resulted from allowing to individual effort in trade and commerce the utmost freedom consistent with the interests of society at large." If the anti-trust statute and prosecutions under its provisions are to have any permanent beneficial results, it must be through the assurance they give of this individual freedom.

The supreme court's decisions in the two cases referred to, as has been contended by this newspaper, give a further guarantee of freedom of trade and commerce to all those concerns operating along legitimate lines. Their freedom must not be abused. It must not take the form of license to restrain the freedom of others. Freedom of trade, as the supreme court, the attorney general, and all thoughtful and reasonable persons must view it, carries with it constantly the obligation of fairness to competitors and to the public at large.

MEANS BUSINESS.
 The refusal of Governor McGovern to sign the re-apportionment bill when presented to him, showed that our chief executive means business, even if he holds a decided reform element which controls the legislature in both houses. It was a decided innovation for a so-called republican legislature to so twist and turn the congressional districts so as to please the social democratic brethren. It was more than an innovation to alter the political map of Wisconsin to suit a favored few. Rock county felt the effect of the change. From three assemblymen it was cut to two, and from one state senator it must divide the honor with Walworth county. Rock county was also affected in the congressional mix-up. The old friends to the west—Green and LaFayette counties—were neatly amputated from the first district, and Waushara, a county of doubtful politics, added. While it assured a republican congressman, still it was a queer mix-up. Governor McGovern vetoed the measure because it affected Milwaukee county, but he might have found a hundred other just as good reasons for doing so if he had been acquainted with the state as a whole as well as he is with Milwaukee county. It was a good idea to kill the measure and it is to be hoped the next apportionment bill will be more suitable to the needs and requirements of the state as a whole.

A FAIR GROUND.
 Business men of Janesville have bought bonds of the Park Association which recently purchased the old fair grounds from the Postwick estate and are converting them into a recreation park. As was said at the time the subject was first broached, it was a move in the right direction. It assures the city of a public playground for years to come and when the projected plans of the directors are completed, it will be one of the best places of its kind in the state. Recently the proposition of transferring the Evansville fair from that city to Janesville was discussed. Misfortune in the shape of a violent storm, partially destroyed the buildings of the Evansville fair grounds and the directors thought it best to talk transfer to Janesville rather than expend the thousand odd dollars needed to repair their own buildings and fences. There is no reason why such a plan could be made to work a great good for both cities. Why would it not be a benefit to the county as a whole? It is up to the local directors to meet the Evansville directors half way and if necessary give something to bring it about. While the local grounds are owned by a private corporation, the understanding is that they are for the use of the general public and it is certain the public as a whole want a fair held in Janesville if it is possible. Think it over. It is not a question that does not affect the entire county and selfish interests should be set aside. If, however, the Evansville fair people decide to go ahead and have their fair in their own town this year, let Janesville boost it and prepare to hold one here next year at a date that will not conflict with the Cut-off city's week.

Another actress wife is seeking a divorce. Nat Goodwin has had his fill and is to retire to the solitudes of his western ranch, while others who live in the limelight are also seeking convenient spots to locate so as to obtain freedom from "bonds that bind."

For the first time in many years the monthly report of the chief of police was not read in the council meeting last evening. It is not a suppression of news, as the report is on file, and can be seen by all who wish to, but a step towards putting the "underworld" things into the background.

Babbling formalists are great things when you learn how to use them. It would be a good thing for the city to install a few more than they have now these hot days.

He sat in comfort in the shade, and exercised his nimble jaws. This world much better might be made if he were asked to frame the laws. It jarred him when he looked around, to see injustice everywhere; and to his ears there came the sound of people wailing in despair. He had a gentle, tender heart that ached for those whose lives were dark, the martyrs of the busy mart, the victims of the money power. For all who suffered, he had sighs; he stood up for the poor man's cause; and if his countrymen were wise, they'd call on him to make the laws. And thus, with dream and idle boast, he talked the hours down, one by one; and, tied up to a hitching post, his horse was standing in the sun. His horse was standing at the flick in language that the ponies use, and rubbing its afflicted eyes, and stamping till it lost its shoes. His soundings schemes I don't endorse; that sort of man I most despise who mouths big theories while his horse is scrapping with the dog-gone flies.

HOW WASHINGTON GOT EVEN.

When George Washington was a young man of 22, he had a dispute one day with another young gentleman, a Mr. Payne. The argument grew very warm, and finally Washington said something which gave great offense to Mr. Payne. The latter retaliated by knocking him down. According to the custom of the times, and the rules of "honor" then prevailing, Washington should have challenged his antagonist to mortal combat, and thus obtain "satisfaction." Every one expected him to do this, and were greatly surprised if not disappointed that he did not. Upon mature reflection he decided that he had been the aggressor, and that he ought to ask pardon of Mr. Payne. Accordingly he went to him the next day and extending his hand said: "To err is natural; to rectify error is honorable. I find I was wrong yesterday, and I wish to be right today. You have had some satisfaction. If you think that is sufficient, let us be friends." After such a speech as this there was but one thing for Mr. Payne to do. They shook hands and were good friends ever after.

DECORATED BABY'S GRAVE.

This is a true story of what happened in Prospect Hill cemetery, at Omaha, Neb.

Two boys were strolling through the cemetery, where many of the graves were decorated with flowers. In their walk the boys came to a small grave that had no flowers on it.

The younger, aged about seven years, stopped and looked at the grave. He turned about to see if any one was near. The coast appeared clear, whereupon he crept over to a nearby mound that was almost covered with the blossoms.

And then—Telling the other boy to keep watch, the little fellow selected several bouquets from the elaborately dressed mound. Hiding the flowers under his jacket, he crept back to the neglected grave and gently bestowed them.

Then he said, "That wasn't stealing, was it?"

"Course not," responded the other. "Don't you think that little baby had just as good right to flowers on its grave as some of those old folks?"

Aye, boy! Somebody had forgotten baby's grave, or was unable to get flowers, or was ill, or something.

That was no reason why the boys should stand by and allow baby's grave to be neglected; that was no reason why the tender feelings of two boys should be hurt.

Benisons on their heads and hearts! They felt the reproach caused by the neglect or inability of baby's friends. They removed the reproach and repaired the neglect by taking a few flowers that would not be missed.

Trust a boy's right feeling; trust the sweet instincts of a right thinking, observant, tender hearted lad to do justice and love mercy.

It was not stealing! I do not care what the calf or buckram bound books in the law libraries may have to say about the legal phase of the boys' actions.

Or, if you must stick to your Blackstone's definition of petty larceny, why, let us appeal to a higher court.

Let us put it along with Uncle Toby's slip. Uncle Toby was guilty, but—you know what happened.

The recording angel dropped a tear upon the oath and blotted it out forever.

DRINKS FIVE QUARTS OF WATER.

Shurtleff College Student Wins Unique Contest at Alton, Ill.

Alton, Ill., July 11.—Ernest McDow is the proud victor of a drinking contest among five seniors of Shurtleff college here, Baptist theological school here, but the defeated four declare he won on a technicality. Earl Griffey suggested the contest while the five were sitting about the college well. A tin cup was passed around, it being a provision of the contest that every man should drink it to the last non-intoxicating drop. The cup was passed around thirty times; it held one-third of a pint, and each man drank five quarts of water.

McDow was the man who started the thirty-first round of water. He raised the cup and almost emptied it, then was overtopped. He could not swallow another drop, and felt ill. So he threw the cup into the well. Since McDow had drunk more than anyone else, and since there was nothing on hand to drink out of, he was declared winner.

ARE YET UNDECIDED ON REMOVAL OF FAIR

DIRECTORS OF EVANSVILLE FAIR ASSOCIATION HAVE NOT TAKEN ACTION REGARDING REMOVAL OF FAIR TO JANESVILLE.

SOME ARE IN FAVOR

Many of the Men Who Have Had Charge of Proposal Believe Greater Success Might Be Achieved in Bower City.

No decision has yet been reached by the directors of the Evansville Fair association regarding the proposal of removing the fair to Janesville this season. The members of the board of directors have not held a meeting to consider the proposition as yet but it is expected that action will be taken within a few days.

On account of the havoc raised by the severe storm of July third, which blew down the grandstand and other buildings on the Evansville fair grounds, it had been proposed to transfer the fair to Janesville this season rather than replace the buildings. It is estimated that it would cost about one thousand dollars to replace and repair the structures destroyed.

Many of the Evansville directors of the association are strongly in favor of the removal to Janesville on the grounds that it would be too expensive to rebuild many of the destroyed buildings, and that the same that have been offered by moving to Janesville tend them to think that a temporary transfer, at least, would be beneficial. There are a number of people in Evansville, however, according to one of the directors of the association, today, who have not been financially interested in the fair, who are anxious to retain the fair in Evansville. How far these people, who are quite numerous, will have weight with the directors in their coming meeting, is unknown. It may be possible that they will come to the assistance of the fair association with a subscription list which will aid materially, but nothing has been done in that direction as yet.

There has not been any decision on the part of the Janesville people, who have been interested in the matter, whether they would be willing to take over the fair permanently or temporarily and aid in financing the proposition. It is generally considered that it would be beneficial to the city to have the fair here and that Janesville possesses many advantages in the way of transportation facilities and accommodations for crowds. However, it would involve the expenditure of some money and other matters of organization, while the success of the proposition is somewhat doubtful.

No action will be taken here until after the meeting of the Evansville directors, when it can be learned whether or not they favor a removal of the fair to this city.

SWITCH ARRIVES FOR STREET RAILWAY CO.

WILL BE IN PLACE WITHIN THE NEXT TEN DAYS ON SOUTH MAIN STREET.

START BIG CARS SOON

As Soon As Finished Interurban Cars Will Come Into City Over This Line.

After nearly two months' delay the diamond switch ordered by the Janesville Traction company, for its South Main street tracks, has arrived, and is being put together at the shops of the local company in Spring Brook, Minn., while men and teams are removing the dirt which has lain along side the right of way on South Main street preparatory to laying the switch.

This switch will be placed between Racine and Clark street and will be used simply to enable cars to pass each other and not to lay cars over on for an indefinite stay. Construction work on the Academy street crossing is also about to start and the construction "gang" of the local company will have work accomplishing this and laying the sixty-pound rails on Washington street, until early in October.

As soon as the switch on South Main street is in place the Rockford interurban cars will come into the city on this track. A special "Y" will be constructed at Main and Milwaukee streets where the big cars can run around, until the extension of North Main street is completed, so that there will be no delay in the traffic. The tracks the company now uses on Franklin street will be abandoned by the interurban but will be used by the Janesville Traction company to run their local cars over. This will increase their present service materially.

Thos. S. Nolan, attorney for the Janesville Traction company, and Chas. Pierce, representing some of the protesting property-owners on South Main street, visited Jefferson yesterday, and a stay in the condemnation proceedings until August 1 was secured to enable the street car company to complete its present track arrangements.

The bringing of the interurban cars into the city over the South Main street line of the Janesville Traction company means that the business of this line is transferred from the west to the east side of the river. The company has rented property on North Main street for a freight office and will also establish a ticket office on this side of the river shortly. The change will doubtless be made within the next ten days at the latest.

GRAIN FIRM IS IN DIFFICULTY.

Heavy Company Notify Customers It Will Retire From Business.

Chicago, July 11.—Close upon the death of James Pettit, who was found dead from drowning in Lake Michigan, came announcement of the retirement from business of the firm of which he was president and general manager.

A number of telegrams were sent out by the Peavey Grain company to its agents and customers all over the country. It was stated that owing to the death of Mr. Pettit the company had decided to retire from the commission business in Chicago.

The Peavey Elevator company, which is a separate corporation, is not affected.

The retirement of the grain company followed meetings of officers of several Chicago financial institutions. The tragic ending of Mr. Pettit's life is said to have a significant bearing on this action.

An official of the Corn Exchange bank put the amount of the money involved at $750,000. He said, however, that he thought the bank would be secured by the warehouse certificates for wheat put up as collateral.

CLARK WOULD MAKE MEN VOTE.

Speaker Tells Endorsers America Has No Room for Idler.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.—With the big audience awaiting the tune of "Dixie," Speaker Champ Clark was introduced to a record throng on the pier as the principal speaker before the Christian Endeavor convention.

"There is no room in the United States for a pessimist or an idler," he declared. "Any man who misses two general elections should be disfranchised. Our forefathers did not fight so we could sit at home. They wanted us to have our say at election. That's what the scrap was about."

Former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks criticized Sunday conditions here in an address.

"When I arrived here," he said, "I would never have known it was Sunday save by looking at the calendar. Conditions were shameful, worse than in any European city."

MOROCCO AFFAIR IS DISCUSSED.

France and Germany to Amicably Settle the Dispute.

Paris, July 11.—While the strictest secrecy is being maintained as to the pourparlers between France and Germany on the subject of Morocco and the sending of a German warship to Agadir, it is understood that they are progressing favorably and there is no fear of strained relations between the two powers.

In addition to the support of Great Britain, Russia has spared no efforts in behalf of France. On two occasions, at St. Petersburg and Berlin, respectively, Russia made known its complete agreement with the French point of view.

BRADLEY BREAKS PARTY SLATE.

Kentucky Senator Carries Republican Convention by Storm.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—After he had been ignored in the organization, United States Senator William O. Bradley suddenly appeared on the platform of the Republican convention in this city and, appealing direct to the delegates, carried the convention for L. P. Turbin of Franklin county as nominee for railroad commissioner for the Second district, which includes Lexington, Louisville, and all the central Kentucky counties.

CHECK ANTI-SEMITIC FEELING.

Stepfather of Dead Boy Arrested and Pamphlets Seized in Russia.

Kiev, Russia, July 11.—Prilkhodko, stepfather of Yushchinsky, the boy whose body, horribly mutilated, was found in a cave near here on February 28, was arrested. The authorities in various towns have confiscated pamphlets in which the writers sought to inflame racial feeling by ascribing the murder to fanaticism.

The case of Yushchinsky was used by the "Black Hundred" to arouse hostility to the Jews, and a Jewish massacre at Kiev was feared in consequence. It was intimated at the time that the boy's stepfather, who was an anti-Semite, was responsible for the crime.

BUTLER RESIGNS FROM N. E. A.

J. Stanley Brown of Joliet Is Chosen as Trustee.

San Francisco, July 11.—The resignation of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university of New York, from the board of trustees of the National Educational association was accepted by the board of directors. J. Stanley Brown of Joliet, Ill., was elected to succeed Doctor Butler.

The remainder of the board continues in office.

Assumed Age.

Every man has a right to his own opinion, but the trouble is he isn't satisfied to keep it to himself.

The Porto Rican's Arsenal.

"I have been visiting one of our outlying possessions," said E. Stanley Paversham.

"I wanted a new sensation in the way of travel, and thought it would be worth while to take a look at Porto Rico.

"The Spanish inhabitants cling to their old customs to a great extent, and a stranger is impressed by the remarkable devotion to canes. Men, young and old, and even boys, carry some sort of a walking stick, and the Porto Rican dandies are very proud of the way they can twirl a cane and make passes with it as with a sword.

"The dodo of the Porto Rican country is very proud of his collection of canes and refers to it as his arsenal."—Washington Post.

Without Regard to Expense.

After a week in the country, up in Montgomery county, a prominent lawyer returned to town determined to stay here during the summer. But before coming home he had the satisfaction of telling the keeper of the "real old country boarding farmhouse" just what he thought of things.

"There is one thing on your table," said the lawyer, "which is not to be excelled by the best hotels of New York or Philadelphia."

"What is it?" asked the farmer.

"The salt," answered the attorney with a fine display of biting sarcasm. "Well, I'm glad ye liked it," returned the farmer. "It's the best Jimson's keep, an' I ain't pertickler about the price."—Philadelphia Times.

The Lance.

Many military experts have derided the lance as a cavalry weapon, asserting that it is old-fashioned and cumbersome; but there are those who still believe in shock tactics and the cavalry charges. In Germany, especially, the lance, in the hands of the Prussian Uhlan, remains a formidable weapon. It recently has been pointed out, however, that the lance point often makes too deep wounds for the shaft to be withdrawn quickly, and so the lancer runs the risk of having it wrenched from his grasp in the charge. Accordingly the cavalry regiments in Germany have for some time been experimenting with a new kind of lance that carries a ball below the base of the lancehead. It is claimed that the new arm is just as effective in disabling an enemy and is free from many disadvantages.

Flustered Orators.

It was a reunion of a gallant Irish regiment, and in due course a member rose to express his carefully rehearsed sentiment. "Here's to the old Fifth-ninth," he began, hotly, "th' last in th' field an' th' first to lave it." "Ye muddler!" shouted a compatriot, springing to his feet. "Here's to th' old Fifth-ninth, equal to none!"

Conservation

Very few persons feel like doing unnecessary work at this season of the year. They seek to conserve their strength.

Men do it daily in their business. They take advantage of modern appliances to lessen labor.

Women may do it if they want to. A Gas Range in the kitchen is the longest step toward it.

There is no labor connected with cooking on a Gas Range. It is the coolest way to cook, too, because all the heat goes into the food, none out into the room.

And, best of all, it is the most economical modern fuel.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

I SHOULD say you were a "let-live," commented Molly, the little stenographer, after a remark from the man-who-thinks.

"And what might that be?" inquired the man-who-thinks. "I'm afraid I'm not, for it's a new one to me, Molly."

"Why, hasn't the lady ever told you about her let-live club?" questioned Molly, in surprise. "The sister, I'm surprised at you. Go ahead and tell them right now."

"It is queer that I haven't before," said the lady-who-always-knows-somewhat. "Well, it's this way:

"When I was first married we moved to R—. R— is one of those prim little old-fashioned towns where everybody knows everybody else. Across the street from me lived a dear little woman with three adorable children. She was one of the sweetest, most kind-hearted and self-forgetful little women I ever knew, and I took to her at once and apparently she did to me.

"We were great friends for several weeks, and then one day a caller said to me: 'My dear you are so intimate with Mrs. L. I've been wondering if you know about her. You see, my dear—and then followed the old, old story of a girl who had loved 'not wisely, but too well.'

"She didn't remember to tell the sequel of a woman whose brave efforts to live her past down had been constantly frustrated by happier women, but I could tell that to myself.

"I knew my friend was now a good and honorable woman, altogether far more worth knowing than most of the women who enjoyed telling this cruel bit of gossip about her, and I meant this shouldn't make the slightest difference in our friendship.

"But, of course, the next time I saw her I couldn't help thinking about it—that's the worst about hearing these things, you can't help thinking about them.

"I certainly never meant to show it. I tried as hard as I knew how not to, but evidently some sixth sense of hers was preternaturally sharpened by suffering, for she hadn't been with me five minutes before she said suddenly: 'You know, they've told you. You can't be the same any more.'

"I couldn't deny that I knew, but, of course, I told her as warmly as I could that it didn't make any difference at all.

"She simply broke down and cried," she said. "You are sweet not to want it to, but you can't help thinking about it. And it was so beautiful to have you not know and treat me just like other people. I was afraid every time I saw you it would be different. They tell everyone, you know, and then they look at me that way. It's my punishment and, of course, I deserve it, but sometimes it seems as if I couldn't stand it."

"Well, my husband's business changed and we had to move from R— about two months later. During that time we both tried to be the same, but there was a feeling of constraint. I always felt afterward that if I had been there right along and had time enough I could have brought things back the way they were at first, and been real close friends, for I never saw a woman I admired more or liked better. But, you see, I didn't have the chance.

"I suppose you see what all this has to do with the 'let-lives.' It came over me that Mrs. L. was only one of a great many people who've made mistakes or slipped in some way in their early lives, and who are tied for a lifetime to their sins by people's cruelty. So I simply made myself a promise that I'd never under any condition pass along anything like this about any man or woman who was trying to live it down, and that I'd try to make as many others as I could see it my way.

"Molly called it a club. Well, it is a sort of big, silent club, with no meetings or dues or anything like that. Your only obligations are to make this promise, and also to promise to tell anyone else about it whenever you can, and give them a chance to join.

"Molly," said the man-who-thinks, "I said I didn't belong, but I do right from this minute."

"Lady," said the wants-to-be-sorry, who had listened without one flippant interruption—a record for him. "No, two please."

N. H.—The lady-who-always-knows-somewhat wants me to extend her invitation to belong to the "let-lives" to you, if you aren't already a member.

The Kitchen Cabinet

O weave, to spin, to knit, to sew.

Was once a girl's employment, but now to dress and catch a beau is what they call enjoyment.

Cheap Cuts of Meat.

Housewives must get away from the idea that only the high priced meats are valuable as food. On the contrary, the cheaper cuts are often more highly flavored and fully as nutritive.

The chuck is one of the cheapest portions of the beef, and when cooked slowly in a small amount of water, with or without vegetables for seasoning, a most appetizing dish is the result.

In stewing the most tender and juicy meat, if too high a temperature is used in the cooking it will toughen the fiber of the meat, leaving it hard and dry. Another mistake often made is to overcook the meat until it falls in shreds.

The skirt steak is the diaphragm of the animal, and being a much used muscle, is rather tough. The skirt steaks sell in most markets two or three cents cheaper than the other steaks, and if properly treated and cooked, are most palatable. Lay the steak on a meat board and score it well with a meat scorer or a chopping knife, dredge with flour and put it into a smoking hot frying pan that has been greased enough to keep the meat from sticking to it. When well seared over on both sides, pour over it a little boiling water and allow it to simmer slowly for two hours. Seasoning may be added to suit the taste.

A bit of carrot or onion, a bay leaf, and a little vinegar to soften the fiber will add to the flavor of the meat.

All light meats are best stewed and browned just before serving, mutton or beef are best browned first, then stewed.

A Swiss steak is prepared as above, but is a steak cut two inches thick from the top of the round.

Cheaper cuts of meat are cooked in the ideal way in the fireless cooker. When roasting meat it should be quickly seared over to retain the juices and then cooked slowly until done. Usually 15 minutes to the pound is required for the time of roasting. Beef and mutton may be served rare, but pork, lamb and chicken should always be well done.

In Womanly Realms.

Men's Viewpoint of Women.

It is really amusing how inconsistent men are," said a young matron, "and yet how completely they believe in their sense of fair play and justice. I have a friend who has been married a couple of years. She has a beautiful voice, and before her marriage was the leader of her church choir and in great demand for concerts. Really, with her voice, there is nothing musically she couldn't aspire to. And she is devoted to it. It is the purest enjoyment for her to study and practice and sing. But she's dropped it. I asked her the other day why she had given up her music, and she said her husband objected, that he was really jealous of it, and thought she cared more for her music than she did for him. She is quite heartbroken, because she is so fond of it. But she gave it up.

"Now that husband doesn't think anything of being absorbed all day and many evenings a week in his business. He considers this all right. But his wife must not be absorbed in anything but himself. She would not carry her study of music near the length he does his attention to business. But it's all wrong for her, though exactly the same thing is all right for him. And he doesn't even think of it in this light. That's the amusing part of it."

"I know just such another case," replied a listener. "The girl is a fine pianist. And the husband is fiercely jealous of her music. I really believe he would like to smash the piano to pieces. And she doesn't neglect him in any way. She practices while he is at business. But she is fond of her music, and, of course, she shows it."

"I know such a case, too," responded a third listener. "The girl was an artist. And she simply had to give up her art."

"And yet these men think they are fitted to make laws and sit as jurors and do other work where impartiality, and ability to see both sides of a case, and such qualities are needed," said the suffragist of the party. "Really it would make one laugh only it is no laughing matter."

No doubt these women are right, and there are many such men. It is, too, in a general way, the masculine viewpoint in regard to women.

But isn't it also in a general way, a matter of tradition? Man's thought toward women has always been in this groove, and he has never considered the subject really for himself. He has taken this condition as a matter of course.

But public opinion in these things is changing and the coming generation of men will have a vastly different viewpoint. They will see not only the justice of woman's claim to live her individual life as they live theirs, but the value of it even to themselves. For man as well as woman will reap the benefit of her advancement, though he may not see it now. The sooner he ceases to regard her as a domestic animal to be used for his pleasure or profit, and looks upon her as an intelligent being, the sooner will the life they live together rise to a higher and happier plane.

I heard a story lately of a highlander who had been persuaded to buy a ticket for a raffle. It's just a suspense wasted."—Dundee People's Journal.

WHAT DO YOU DO TO PROVIDE ENTERTAINMENT?

Summer Time and Cool Home Ideas Either in the City or Country—Can You Tell About It?

The Gazette Contest Editor believes that a topic of unusual interest at this time would have to do with home summer entertainment and in view of the fact that but few of the great number of people go away from home at all, it would seem as if there ought to be considerable interest aroused in this subject and that a great number of very useful ideas may be secured from the thought of women generally.

What do you do to fill in pleasantly the time which you have on hand? It is to be expected that but few of us have much time, still, at odd times there should be some provision made to entertain the children and to provide amusement and pastime for the older folks. Would you have a basket picnic? Would you have some lawn entertainment? Would you take an interurban ride to some nearby park, or street car ride to the woods at the edge of the city? What would you do when you arrived at those places? Would you hitch up for a day along the river?

To stimulate interest and discussion the Gazette offers for the best articles dealing with home entertainment for the summer months:

First Prize—Caloric Fireless Cook-stove.

Second Prize—Set of 45 pieces of Flow Blue Dishes.

Third Prize—Vacuum Bottle.

Fourth Prize—Sampson Kitchen Scales.

The contest will end August 1st.

WALKING COSTUME.

Quite simple and smart is the costume we show here; it is reproduced in this little mauve face cloth.

It has the skirt made with a plain back and front, laid to sides in wrapped seams; the upper part of side is plain and is cut with a rounded end, which is laid over the top of pants.

The One-Sided Frill.

Neckwear styles have not changed much since the fall fashions were put before us. The one-sided frills so much worn in the beginning of the season are seen. These are made of the finest linen lace and embroidery and button in with a front buttoning blouse or are attached to a band that will run down the front of a waist buttoning in the back.

When worn with a collarless blouse there is generally a plaited frill collar or a straight standing collar or stock, which comes with the front frill.

Vogue of Black and White.

Black and white in all departments of the wardrobe is having a wonderful run. In spite of the great modishness of the blend last fall and this winter there is an appearance now of a still greater vogue throughout the coming summer. But many of the black and white costumes are touched with vivid color in some way, and the more original the note of brilliancy the better it is liked.

THE USEFUL "LACE WAIST" APPEARS IN NEW GUISE.

Worth has been making up dainty little lace blouses for wear with tailored suits—authorities enough for the woman who loves dainty white lace waists and only needs an excuse to wear them again. The waist pictured is made of dotted net and, as will be noted, the sleeves are separate, being added in the familiar manner which has been temporarily forgotten during the furore for peasant sleeves. Coarse velvet ribbon run through heading and they close with buttons on the sleeves add a pretty color touch. The feature of this net blouse, however, is the pleated frill which falls over the skirt. These frills will be a feature of fall blouses.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

DIETETIC PECULIARITIES HEREDITARY.

That food which agrees with one person may be distinctly injurious to another must be true to some extent; because temperaments differ, mental states differ, and temporary bodily conditions differ. I know a man who rickens at the thought of eating oysters, and another who cannot eat a spoonful of honey without suffering. The former once ate freely of oysters and was made very sick, thus establishing a subjective impression that causes nausea when the eating of oysters is suggested. Investigation of a number of cases like this has led me to the conclusion that idiosyncrasies of this character are caused by errors in eating and that they are hereditary. In fact, I suppose the bilious temperament is the result of one habit of eating, the effects of which are hereditary, the sanguine of another, the nervous of another, just as the physician finds in his daily practice that peculiar conditions of stomach, of bowel digestion or of liver can be traced in family history. This explanation harmonizes with that ancient saying: "The parents ate sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge."

APPROPRIATION MADE FOR MERCY HOSPITAL

COMMON COUNCIL AUTHORIZED MAYOR TO DRAW CONTRACT FOR PAYMENT OF $500 TO SISTERS IN CHARGE.

FOR EMERGENCY CASES

City to Aid Hospital in Charity Work Done by That Institution—Other Routine Work Done at Council Meeting Last Night.

It may have been the warmth of the sun in the city hall that took the place of heated arguments or it may have been that the fire was taken from the discussions during the session which was somewhat long for the amount of business to be handled, but after the session of the common council last evening was under way, everything moved off quickly.

The only sign of a difference of opinion displayed at all was over the question of giving $500 yearly to Mercy Hospital for handling the city's emergency cases. This was brought on by Alderman Buchholz's order that the Mayor be directed to enter into a contract with the hospital authorities for caring for emergency cases in the city of Janesville at a sum not to exceed $500 and that the contract should be paid out of the general fund of the city. No money in appropriation for the same.

The chairman from the Second explained that the appropriation really was a worthy one as there were many instances of charity cases taken into the hospital and it was no more than right that the city should aid them.

Some question was raised as to whether or not the hospital would be required to pay taxes on the institution, a move having been made to place the property on the list as non-taxable. Alderman Evans stated that in his opinion if the five hundred dollars were given to the hospital, the institution should be required to pay the tax.

City Attorney Maxwell voiced the opinion that if it was desired to give five hundred dollars outright to the hospital the sum named in the order should be raised to seven hundred dollars so as to include the taxes.

The mayor, however, stated that he, as one of the members of the Board of Review would vote to exempt the institution. A motion was made by Alderman Hall to lay the matter over two weeks, but the motion was killed on the vote, 5 to 4. Alderman Dunn being absent from the session.

The original resolution introduced by Alderman Buchholz went through by a vote of 6 to 3.

Resolutions introduced by Alderman Buchholz last evening were passed recitalizing the orders passed at a recent meeting of the council for paving with brick on North Academy street and gutter on North Main street from Milwaukee street to Fourth avenue. New orders, the same as those rescinded, were, however, introduced and passed by the city fathers ordering the work to be done.

The reason for the action taken was explained by the chairman. A state law which recently went into effect states clearly that railroads shall be held for taxation in case of improvement to the streets which their property crosses or touches upon. Under the old law there was a possibility that the railroads might refuse to pay this tax with a possibility of winning. The first orders were passed before the new law went into effect and in order to make it impossible for the railroads to evade the tax which would be placed on their properties for the work on the streets, the first orders were killed and the new orders passed.

The Northwestern and St. Paul roads were ordered to repave all crossings where such are needed, at intersections with the streets of the city, and in case of failure of the railroads to comply with the order within ten days, the street commissioner was directed to do the work and charge the cost of the same against the common carriers. The Janesville Traction company was directed to place its tracks on grade on that part of Washington street from Mineral Point avenue to the city limits.

Appointments made by the mayor were announced by the mayor and received confirmation from the council. Jerome R. Davis was named as inspector of sewer work in the Third Ward to act under instructions from the city engineer and G. H. Crane was chosen to inspect the work on the Racine street bridge. Mrs. Thos. S. Nolan, Mrs. John G. Rexford and Horace McElroy were appointed members of the library board.

The appointments of the mayor of special policemen for the celebration July 3, 4 and 5, some of whom worked without pay, were confirmed and orders directed drawn for the payment of special officers at three dollars per diem. Joe Murray, mounted officer received four dollars and a half per day to deliver on parade on July 3.

The contracts and bonds of They Bros., of Dubuque, Ia., for the sewer work in the six districts to be done this summer, were accepted and the mayor and city clerk were directed to sign them on behalf of the city.

Preliminary steps were taken toward securing a consolidation and revision of the ordinances of the city, the city attorney being directed to draw up a contract with William Ruger, Sr., for the work and submit the agreement to the council for its approval.

The ordinance introduced at the last session regarding the blocking of North High street between the tracks at the St. Paul passenger station and the northern side of the station, was brought up last night at the request of Alderman Sheridan and laid on the table. A unanimous vote was cast in favor of killing the measure.

Henry Schumaker's claim of two hundred dollars for personal injuries alleged to have been received by falling over a wire netting across the sidewalk on Western avenue met a similar fate. The petition of A. Wilkduz for a junk dealer's license gratis, on account of the falling of his eye-sight, also received its stamp of disapproval.

The finance committee was authorized to employ Harry Haggart to audit the books of City Treasurer James A.

Fathers at a cost not to exceed $75. The city treasurer's report for the month of June was accepted and ordered placed on file. The city marshal's report was accepted and placed on file and the report of the board of education was ordered published. Current bills were allowed and the city clerk was ordered to renew the insurance on the city hall, just expiring, in the sum of $5,000 with Hayner & Beers. Bonds of S. W. Rostkeln, J. Dietz, Cohen Bros. and William Mirlipolsky were approved.

STALK OF CORN OVER TWELVE FEET HIGH

George Hiller Brings Sample of Marvellous Growth of Yellow Dent to Gazette Office.

"Corn knee high on Fourth of July," an adage well known to all farmers, has been shattered and discredited this year by the unprecedented growth of this form of vegetable. A phenomenal growth went on record this morning when George Hiller, rural mail route number one, brought to The Gazette office a stalk of the Yellow Dent variety from a quarter acre planted and cultivated by him on Linden avenue.

The stalk measures twelve feet and five inches from the roots to the tip and according to Mr. Hiller the whole piece of land will not vary over several inches from this sample. The stalk is fully two inches in diameter and is said to have borne two or three healthy ears which were well filled out. Taking the whole piece of land over, many of the ears are to be found as high as nine feet from the ground. It is no freak growth but is merely a sample of a good, healthy, well filled piece of corn.

The plot was planted on May sixth, and the seed used was a Janesville product, purchased at a local store. The stalk brought in is on exhibition in one of the windows of The Gazette office.

GIRL LOSES FINGER IN FARM MACHINE

Little Lauretta Wells of Rock Hills, Father, With Painful Result—Loses Finger in Cultivator Gear.

As a result of having her finger badly mangled in the gear of a cultivator, Lauretta Wells, the four year old daughter of Mr. Wells of Rock Hills, had the third finger on her right hand amputated below the first joint, Saturday afternoon.

The little girl was riding on the cultivator with her father and in some way reared her hand upon the gear of the machine. The father, unthinking of the danger, reached for the lever and threw it forward grinding the finger of the child between the gears.

The bone was so badly mangled and the skin so lacerated that Dr. Wauke found it necessary to amputate the member close to the first joint.

EDGERTON REVIEW BOARD HELD ANNUAL SESSION

Matters of Importance Are Expected to Come Before Board—Which Will Be in Session Several Days.

Edgerton, July 10.—This morning at nine o'clock the annual session of the board of review convened. The session promises to be an important one and is likely to last for a number of days as matters of importance are liable to come before the board.

C. A. Fritz of the Edgerton Cigar company went to Port Atkinson this morning on business. George Church, night clerk at the Carlton hotel, spent over Sunday at the parental home in Jefferson.

James Cunningham left Saturday for Jefferson, having accepted a position at that place. John Quicke, who, in company with Joel Thompson, also of this city, is engaged in the lively business at Lake Mills, was here Sunday.

H. C. Schmeling left Sunday evening for Seymour, in the northern part of the state, where he will assist in laying on his farm for the next two weeks.

Mrs. George Balling and two sons, and Miss Helen Vennemann arrived from Milwaukee, Sunday, to join the H. C. Schmeling family and Milwaukee relatives at Camp Helen, on the banks of Lake Koshkonong.

G. G. Lohb, clerk in the grocery department of the Pringle Bros. & Keller department store, is enjoying a two week vacation and this morning, in company with his wife, departed for Rockford. Later they will go to Precept, Orangeville and other points in Illinois.

Miss Carrie Schmeling, who for over four years has held a position of saleslady in the dry goods department of the department store in this city, has resigned, and Saturday returned to the home of her parents in Abilene township.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cullen, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson spent Sunday at Lake Koshkonong, making the trip by auto.

The Schumacher families, twelve in number, chartered the bus, Sunday, and spent a pleasant outing at Charley Bluff.

Andrew Plost, who was operated on for tumor of the stomach at the Janesville hospital several weeks ago, was brought home Saturday. His chances for recovery are reported good.

Miss Olga Hanson, head saleslady at the department store, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation, which she is spending at the Mulplett cottage on the banks of Rock river, in company with her sister, Emma, and brother, Oscar.

Mrs. Gust Wiestler and daughters, Minnie and Maribel, and Miss Herta Boettcher, after spending the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Venske, Sr., departed Sunday morning for their home in Chicago.

Fools. One rocked the boat, one didn't know the gun was loaded, one touched his cigar to a celluloid collar; but the chief of them played poker in a gentleman's game.—Judge.

The Way of the Laundry. "I had my office coat washed last week," said Mr. Hixson, "and now it's an office jacket."

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

BY MARVIN BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY JIM

"Unless he drew the necklace from memory," suggested Manning. "That sounds too easy," Britz returned. "He'd have to have a memory like a daylight film to carry all the different sizes and shapes of those jewels in his mind—to say nothing of their firm. The fact is, the drawings he made were not only accurate to the smallest degree of outline, but the luster of every stone seems to have been reproduced with skill that would keep 'em guessing at the Academy of Design. I tell you, Curtis Griswold is an artist in more ways than one!"

Pausing a little, Britz went on: "And that's what he did; he made the drawings at first hand, and probably colored them in the same way. Then he took them over to Paris and formed out the contract among several firms, taking care to split up the drawings so that no one manufacturer of paste jewels might know they were reproductions of the famous Maharane necklace. Logan traced all the drawings in gay Paris, and sent them to me. Here they are." He took several small sheets of card-board from an inner pocket and spread them on his desk.

"There's something missing from the center," Manning commented when he had placed the slips together. "This is a picture of a necklace with a hole in the middle."

Britz smiled. "Yes," he said, "that's where the Maharane diamond was. You see, Griswold was too foxy to have an imitation of that celebrated stone made anywhere in Europe. He knew there wasn't a man on the Continent identified in any way with the trade who wouldn't recognize a drawing of that diamond on sight. Though the diamond is not so well known to the public, it's as familiar to every jeweler in Europe as the Kohinoor, the Hope, or any other of those great sparklers."

"Where could he have gone, then, to have the big stone reproduced?" asked the Chief.

"Ask the doctor there. If he's half the detective I think he is, he knows as well as I do."

Fitch smiled nervously, then his face became grave as the realization of what all this meant to Ellnor surged back on him.

"I fancy," he said to Manning. "Lieutenant Britz has concluded the false Maharane diamond was made by a harmless lunatic we traced to the asylum."

"Right you are, doc!" said Britz brusquely. "You guessed it the very first time. Little old Mr. Martin was the gentleman. He did that job of work for Mr. Griswold, and from all I've heard a fine job he made of it, too."

"Crazy, is he?" asked Manning. "Mad as they make 'em," Britz replied, "but, as the doctor says, harmless. He couldn't have made so good an imitation had he not believed he

"I don't want to make things too unpleasant for these bright young men," Britz said sarcastically. "but I do want to give myself the satisfaction of having them nab the two persons they should have arrested in less than a week after the theft of Mrs. Millicent's jewels was discovered."

Manning felt he had no choice save to comply. He wasn't exactly pleased by the insistence of his Lieutenant's request; but when Britz, at a nod from him, pressed a push button and an attendant appeared in the doorway, Chief Manning ordered the bluecoat to ask Donnelly and Carson to report to him in the lieutenant's room at once.

"Right here," Britz proceeded. "In where an interesting side feature of the mystery comes in. Griswold would have probably been more alert if he had known that men ten times as adroit as he, and a hundred times more unscrupulous, had journeyed half around the world to get one of those very gems he was preparing to steal from the woman he hoped to marry. I don't know exactly what's at the bottom of the interest those Hindoos have in the great Maharane diamond; but I do know they're willing to go pretty close to the electric chair to get it. I understand it was not really bought from the wife of an Indian prince, as Millicent told his wife it was. My best information is that it came from a Hindoo temple. You know those savages set great store by their idols. At any rate, from a half-dozen to a dozen Indians of various degrees came here from Calcutta some time ago and camped on the trail of the Maharane diamond. They played a waiting game and, apparently, they were on the point of making a grand effort to get the stone when the head of this organization happened to be in the box next to Mrs. Millicent at the Metropolitan Opera House on the night when the necklace turned out to be a fake. He then learned that the original diamonds were not in the widow's keeping any longer.

"Griswold also was in the Missioner box that night, as you know, and he must have noticed the Oriental who butted in during the search for the diamonds."

Britz paused a little, and then resumed: "These Hindoos worked about as fast as I did. They must have made up their minds pretty early in the game that Miss Holcomb knew nothing about the necklace, and, of course, nobody would be foolish enough to suspect little Miss March. Our dark friends from the East concentrated their attention on Griswold and Sands. For a long time, all had been in Mrs. Millicent's employ. It wasn't, however, Mrs. Millicent's employ in the true sense of the word. It was there as one of the subordinates of this Swami chap, along with the other Oriental fellows, one of whom calls himself Prince Kamanda. In fact, all was on the job from the day he became a member of Mrs. Millicent's household. He was sent there for the precise purpose of picking off the place, and either getting the big diamond himself, or tipping the Swami and all the rest of them when it would be safe for them to make a try. It stands to reason Mrs. Millicent watched her jewels pretty closely, and that her safe was a jim-dandy, since that necklace in all those long months could not be lifted by the Hindoo servant. He would have been perfectly willing to throttle her in order to get it had he felt reasonably sure of a getaway as easily after a murder as after a robbery."

"You must have been reading about All Baba and the Forty Thieves, Britz," said Manning with another harsh laugh. "This sounds altogether too much like the Arabian Nights to be the goods."

"Well, there weren't as many as forty of the thieves, and the All in this case wasn't an honest man. I'm giving it to you straight, Chief. I haven't worked day and night on this proposition for nothing. You'll find it just as I'm telling it to you, and if you'll suspend judgment until I get through, I'll deliver the goods all right."

"I think," remarked Fitch to Manning, "we shall find that Lieutenant Britz comes pretty near knowing what he is talking about. I've seen him work on this case, and I know something of the facts he has discovered. If you have ever studied the ways of Orientals you'll be surprised at nothing they do. They look at life from altogether a different angle. Life is about the cheapest thing in life to them."

"Very good," said Manning. "I'm willing to be convinced, but it seems hard to believe that a woman worth a hundred millions could live for months with death hanging over her head in her own household, and yet know nothing about it. What's the use of being a multi-millionaire if you're no safer than in an eighteen-dollar flat? For my part, I don't take much stock in your Hindoos."

"You'll take a lot of stock in them before the morning is over, Chief, if you stay with us," Britz retorted. "I'm going to show you not only the Hindoos in the act of attempting to get away, but I'll turn up the goods in their possession. They have the diamond now, but I'll have both them and the diamond in a very few hours!"

"I believe you," Fitch chimed in. "You see, Chief," he explained to Manning, "this Lieutenant of yours has made the capture of the Hindoos more or less of a personal matter."

A choppy laugh from the detective interrupted the physician.

"Yes," he agreed, "I don't mind telling you that I'm almost as eager to get those fellows as I am to recover the widow's jewels. They got just a little bit too gay with me for their own good." He flushed slightly as he recalled how utterly he had been at the mercy of the Hindoos when he lay like a holiday turkey on the floor of that bare room in the unoccupied upper apartment.

"The Hindoos," said Britz, "went through the apartments of Sands and Griswold with what Sam Weller would call a double-million-magnifying microscope. They didn't leave a postage stamp unsearched. They looked into every hole and corner, ransacked every drawer, and turned every place inside out. I caught 'em at it—two of them, anyway—in Sands' room, and they're now in the West Thirtieth Street Station. They must have gone through Griswold's apartment first, for it was there, I guess, they found this note from Millicent to 'Curtis dear,' and it was this note that gave me a line on how brother Griswold stood with the lady of the Hotel Rensselaire. I know Griswold was in the habit of visiting that hotel, but I didn't know when he went there to see. I felt pretty certain when I got the note that it came from somebody in the Rensselaire, and I got Rawson to send the bunch out on the hunt so that I could make certain I'd made no mistake."

"One of the men reported there was a Mrs. Delaroché at the Rensselaire. That looked good enough to me. I went there that same night, with the doctor on the sidewalk, as the lookout. I did a little burglary stunt that would have landed the jewels if the Hindoos had not got there ahead of me. In some way or other, those fellows learned about the acquaintance between Griswold and the Delaroché lady about the same time I did, or perhaps a little earlier. One of them got into her apartment by the fire escape route and sneaked the jewels from under her pillow. What's more, he contented himself with the diamonds themselves, and didn't even take the casket they were in. The jewel case was still under her pillow when I got there, and it wasn't until after the lady, under the impression the gems were in the case, gave herself away more or less, that I found the little box was empty. When I looked out on the fire escape, I saw the handkerchief the dark-skinned crackman had dropped in his hurry. That sent us hot-footed to the Swami's house."

When Britz had sketched the history of the Millicent case, Manning and Fitch looked at him admiringly. Both his hearers were thoughtful for a minute or two. Then the Chief, though he realized Britz had solved the mystery, could not refrain from picking flaws.

Wild Strawberries. Strawberries have improved very much in flavor since the fifteenth century. Until then the only strawberries eaten were wild strawberries of a kind which would never find a market nowadays. By 1487, however, they were beginning to be cultivated, for Hollander records under that date a particularly fine crop grown by the Bishop of Ely in the grounds of his palace, now covered by Hatton Garden.

He quotes the Duke of Gloucester as saying to the Bishop, "My lord, you have very good strawberries in your garden in Holborn. I require you to let us have a mess of them." This speech was copied almost verbatim by Shakespeare in "Richard III." Still, even the Bishop's fruit would not appear much to modern connoisseurs, for the garden strawberries at that period were only transplanted wildlings, the plants being sold at about 4d. a bushel.—London Chronicle.

When Is an Old Maid? "Some day the marriageable age for women will be advanced from 20 to 30, and the old maid line will be changed from 30 to 40. When that time comes there will be surprisingly few divorcees. The husband of whom we dream at 20 is not at all the type of man who attracts us at 30. The man I married at 20 was a brilliant, mercurial, handsome, abnormal creature, with magnificent eyes and very white teeth and no particular appetite at meal time. The man whom I could care for would be the normal, safe and substantial sort who would come in at 6 o'clock, kiss me once, sniff the air twice, and say, 'Mm! What's that smells so good, old girl? I'm as hungry as a bear. Trot 'em out. Where are the kids?'—From "Dawn O'Hara," by Edna Ferber.

JOHN W. GATES. LITTLE HOPE EXTENDED FOR DYING MILLIONAIRE.

John W. Gates Who Has Suffered a Relapse and Lies in a Critical Condition Near Death.

Paris.—The condition today of John W. Gates shows little improvement and the physicians fear that his soon death is inevitable. He has suffered a relapse and passed the day in a comatose condition. Charles Gates on board the Marcella is hurrying to Europe in an effort to reach his father's bedside before the end.

The King's "Easy Money."

The curious powers and duties of the coroner, under traditional law, are illustrated by a recent incident at Southgate, England, says the New York Sun. Some workmen digging in the Amberley road found a large number of ancient coins. Immediately the coroner was called and he impounded a jury. An expert numismatic testified that the coins were "Long Cross" pennies of the reign of Henry III, 1207 to 1272. The jury then found a verdict that the coins were ancient, that they had been concealed and that their depositor was unknown. "Then I seize the coins as the king's treasure trove," said the coroner—and he did.

KIDNEY DISEASES ARE CURABLE Under certain conditions. The right medicine must be taken before the disease has progressed too far. Mr. Perry A. Pitman, Dale, Tex., says: "I was down in bed for four months with kidney and bladder trouble and gall stones. One bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me well and sound." Ask for it—Hager Drug Co.

A WARNING TO MANY Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics.

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's disease which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910. In the state of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and wish a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., (Inglis), 411 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Mention this paper and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail.

Swamp-Root is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

Filling a Lamp. Reservoirs of oil lamps should never be filled to the brim, as oil expands when heated, and the overflow is apt to exude, causing a smell of paraffin, while to prevent the oil from flowing over the edge of the burner after the lamp has been filled the wick, after cleaning, should be turned down below the level of the burner until it is required to light it.

Travels of an English Postmistress. Miss Trimmingham, postmistress and letter carrier of Fishlake, near Doncaster, England, has been "postman" for 37 years, and in charge of the post office for 23 years. Her journeys total 6,156 miles in 12 months. During the whole of the time she has been on duty for only seven days, and has walked over 200,000 miles.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Solves the Problem of Good Hair

After Prof. Sabouraud confirmed the germ origin of dandruff, science was confronted by a new problem which was not solved until the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide being the first successful preparation compounded in harmony with this new theory, becomes the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ.

Since then, numerous preparations sold to be "just as good" as Herpicide have been thrown upon the market; others have adopted Herpicide claims, and without making any change in their remedies, but none have ever reached the same degree of popularity. Everywhere this remedy is recognized as the one genuine dandruff germ destroyer. As a result Herpicide has more satisfied users than all other hair preparations combined.

Being the original remedy, users expect more astonishing results from Herpicide than they would look for from any other preparation and they usually get them. So wonderful has been the success of this germicide that it is now recognized as the standard hair remedy of the world.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, checks falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. For sale at drug stores. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Application obtainable at the good barber shops. Insist on having real Herpicide. Send for in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. B., Detroit, Mich.

HAVE YOU $200 TO LOAN?

Janesville Gazette, Janesville, Wis. Gentlemen—

The following is a description of a loan that we have on hand to dispose of. It is an exceptionally good one and being for a small amount, we think it may attract the attention of some of your subscribers. It is for $200.00 at 7% net for two years, on a house and 3 acres of land adjoining the city limits. The property is easily worth $1500.00 and has fire insurance to the amount of $1000.00 that will be assigned as collateral. The house and buildings are in first class shape, being erected in 1910. The money borrowed is also to be used for improvements on the property. Yours very truly, LADYSMITH ABSTRACT CO. By Hughes.

To Remedy Corrosion.

Corrosion in metals is said to be prevented by the passage through the metals of a weak current of electricity. This is a "like cure like" treatment, for the pitting of metals is said to be due to the local electrical action, that is, feeble current developed by the molecular water on dissimilar metals, often impurities in the metal itself, at the point of corrosion.

Sea-Weed Eating Nations.

China and Japan are pre-eminently the seaweed-eating nations of the world. Among no other people are seaweeds so extensively eaten and relied on as food.

To Keep a Bed From Damp.

The best way to keep a bed from damp, if left for a week or two, is to leave a blanket on the top after it is made. Take the blanket off before using and you will find it quite safe.

STATE OF WISCONSIN—COUNTY COURT FOR ROCK COUNTY.

Notice is hereby given that at a Regular Term of the County Court to be held in and for said County at the Court House in the City of Janesville, in said County, on the first Tuesday, being the 5th day of July, 1911, at 9 o'clock a. m., the following matter will be heard and considered: The application of Eliza May Porter, Win. Hyde, the wife of said deceased, for the last will and testament of Henry P. Hyde late of the City of Janesville in said County, deceased, and for the assignment of the real estate of which said deceased died seized to such other persons as may be lawfully entitled thereto. Dated June 26th, 1911. By the Court, J. W. BAKER, County Judge. (See June 26th weekly-leavk.)
